Mangled with an Ax.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 30.—Nanticoke was the scene of a romantic tragedy this morning. Joseph Graseh, a young Hungarian, had been paying attention to a Polish girl named Pika. The married brothers of the girl, John and Joseph Pika, opposed Graseh's suit and the young couple planned an elopement. At 1 o'clock this morning Graseh came to the house and raising a ladder to the window of the room occupied by the young lady was assisting her to descend when they were discovered by the brothers, one of whom seized and held Graseh while the other struck him several blows with an ax, mangle him in a horrible manner. Graseh's ribs were broken and one of his ears cut off, as were also several of his fingers. His body and limbs received terrible cuts. His death is momentarily expected. The two men escaped, but were subsequently captured and placed in jail.

Reversed and remanded—Craddock et al. vs. Orand et al., from Bell.

The court also sustained opinions of the commission of appeals in the following cases: Affirmed—Lendhiem & Bro vs. Muschamp, from Valverde; Wilson vs. Demander, from Bastrop; International and Great Northern Railway company vs. Gordon, from Robertson; International and Great Northern Railway company vs. Moody from Bexar.

Reversed and remanded—Covet et al., from Montague; McCauley and Campitt vs. Harrison, from Tom Green; International and Great Northern Railway company vs. Heston, from Travis; Blum et al. vs. Simpson, from Bell; Gulf Colorado and Santa Fe railway vs. Johnson, from Tarrant.

A Big Land Claim.

Denver, Oct. 30.—Dave Ferrell, the well known sporting man, filed an application in the local land office on September 25th, 1885, asking permission to make a homestead entry for land upon which the city of Greeley, a town of about 7,500 population now stands. The local land office refused the entry, alleging that the tract asked for belonged to the Greeley town company. Ferrell then appealed from the decision of the local land office. At the time he asked to homestead the Greeley tract he also made application for timber culture claim on the land situated near Greeley. Ferrell yesterday received word through the land office here that the timber claim had been allowed by the secretary of the interior, and that his homestead claim would also in all probability be granted. The property in question includes that portion of Greeley which the most valuable buildings in the town are situated. The timber tract is included in the land owned by the Union Pacific railway. The action of the secretary of the interior has caused great consternation in Denver as much real estate in Greeley is owned by Denver parties.

A Strange Death.

Sherman, Oct. 30.—E. W. Shrite died at his home here this morning under suspicious circumstances. Last week the deceased and Miss Mary Dennison were married and have resided here since. Shrite was 21 years of age. He came, with his parents, from Platt county, Mo., to Basin Springs, in this county. After his marriage Shrite informed his wife that he was a member of a detective association, with headquarters in Indiana; that its members were bound together by the strongest bonds and the only way he could obtain a release was to marry, though some of the members who lived at Denison insisted on his remaining in the order. The association owed him $400 for services, and he left for Denison yesterday morning to get his money. He returned to his wife last night under the influence of a drug, telling her not to let him go to sleep.

He explained that two members of the secret organization had given him wine while trying to persuade him to remain with them, and that he was forced to slip away from them. He thought the wine contained morphine. His wife kept him awake until midnight, when he grew worse and physicians were called. He died during the forenoon. The inquest showed that Shrite did not want to give the names of the two men who were with him. It is believed the men live in Texarkana. It has been disclosed that Shrite was connected with a branch detective association, having received his appointment through a man named Reid.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

She Decided to Take the Risk at All Hazards.

A little girl wanted more buttered toast, and was told that she had had enough and that more toast would certainly make her ill. "Well," said she, "give me another piece and send for the doctor right away!"—Philadelphia Call.

AN UNFINISHED APPEARANCE. A little girl was walking the other day with her governess. They met a man with a club foot, at whom the child looked a little wonderingly as he passed and then laughed. "You must not laugh at him," said the governess. "Why not?" "God made that man."

"Humph!" said the child, "it must have been the first man he made!"—Boston Transcript.

LADYBORN. Little Ina, nearly 5 years of age, set out to visit school the other day as gay as a lark, but returned after the session with a careworn expression of countenance. When asked how she liked school, she said: "I did not like it."

"Why not?" "Oh! I had to work awful hard."

"What did you have to do?" "I had to keep still like everything."—New York World.

THE HEAVENLY WHY. Small Boy No. 1 to small boy No. 2, who is strutting around with his hands in his pockets—Come over and play with me, Johnny!

"Can't." "Go ask your mother if you can't."

"Can't ask her; she is out somewhere looking for me."—Life.

SISTERLY SOLICITUDE. Mamma—Did you give your little brother any of your candy?

Little Dot—No, mamma. I was 'fraid it'd spoil his teeth.—Philadelphia Record.

A REMEDY SUGGESTED. A bright Canajoharie five-year-old appeared with a dirty face at his grandmother's house the other day, and she, with an intensified look of surprise, remarked: "Why, child, you really look tough."

The little fellow placed his hand upon his stomach, looked up with a piteous expression and said: "Grandma, I feel tough. Haven't you got any apples or pears in the house?" The young man's appetite was speedily appeased.—Albany Journal.

A Faithful Servant. Miss Society—Did you do as I requested in regard to refusing admittance to Mr. Jones?

New Girl—Yes, mum, or ased 'em all if their names was Jones, an' one of 'em said it was, an' 'ol told 'em yer all had gone to Europe for sixteen years.

"Was he a tall, handsome man, with a black beard?"

"No, mum; he was a quare likin' dick, in soder clothes, an' the shapsteen had a big bag o' letters hangin' over his shoulder. Is it stealin' letters he's after, miss?"—Philadelphia Record.

Imported. Col. Tom Reynolds was shot through the leg, and the surgeon was discussing the necessity of amputation.

The colonel overheard what was said—he was of Irish birth—and looking up suddenly, he remarked:

"Save it if you possibly can, doctor; it is very valuable; it is an imported leg, you know."

The doctor concluded that such a man would pull through, and he did.—Youth's Companion.

A Matter of Business. Clerk to landlord—Young Mr. Spriggins and old Tenney have had a quarrel, and both threaten to leave the house unless the other one does.

Landlord—Which is the better customer?

Clerk—About the same, sir.

Landlord—Told old Tenney he must go. He is likely to die any day, and we may keep Spriggins for years.—Philip H. Welch in The Epoch.

Late at Tenor. Mr. Coggs—I believe we were engaged at Mt. Desert a few weeks ago. I've just come in on the accommodation train.

Miss Countess—I'm awfully sorry, but one of the others just came on the express.—Time.

Asking for Instructions. Man with immense tumor on his neck (to barber)—I have only half an hour to catch a train. Please hurry.

Puzzled Barber looking first at head and then at tumor—Yes, sir. Which is it, please—hair cut or a measure for a wig?—Chicago Tribune.

Doubtful Compliment. Guest—I wish I had come here a week ago.

Proprietor—Ah, that's very flattering to my hotel.

"I don't know about that. What I mean is that I would have preferred to have eaten this fish then instead of now."—From the German.

The Elephant Left. Minister (dining with the family)—And did you feed some peacocks to the elephant yesterday, Bobby?

Bobby (glomily)—Now, sir; I only had a three cent bag, and what few there was in it I ate myself.—New York Sun.

Feminine Fastidious. Milliner's Apprentice—Here's a new style of hat that I've invented.

Omaha Milliner—It will never be popular.

"Why not?"

"Everybody could see over it at the opera."—Omaha World.
